

WANTED

BY THE FBI

"Honey Bun Bandits"
Salt Lake City, Utah
December 17, 2012

UNKNOWN BANK ROBBER

DESCRIPTION

Sex: Male

Clothing/Disguise: Both subjects entered the bank in hooded sweatshirts, one wore white, the other wore blue.

CAUTION

On Monday, December 17, 2012, at approximately 11:30 am, two masked gunman entered the Zions Bank located at 1420 South and 300 West in Salt Lake City, Utah. One adult male subject was wearing a dark blue hooded sweatshirt and is approximately 6'0" to 6'2" tall. The other adult male was wearing a white hooded sweatshirt and is approximately 5'8" to 6'0" tall.

Although no one was injured during the robbery, customers and employees inside the bank had guns pointed at them and were threatened and ordered to the ground. Also, the bandits placed a package inside the bank, said it was a bomb, and left the scene. The package, which was wrapped in blue Christmas wrapping paper with snowmen printed on it, was not a bomb, but rather a box of Mrs. Freshley's Honey Buns.

REWARD

The FBI is offering a reward of up to $10,000 for information that leads to the arrest and conviction of the persons involved.
